First Day will be focused on the theory of Tong Ren and the different techniques and methodology including ultrasound theory and case applications / Second Day is an expansion of skill set, additional techniques and how to include it as part of a healing practice. If you are looking to work on a friend, pet, self or family member and want only the basics the first day will be enough. If you are looking to deepen your skill set, be issued a certificate and/or use Tong Ren Therapy as a Tong Ren practitioner you will want to attend both days.

Because of its success treating many cancer patients, doctors at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute took note and a research study was conducted to examine Tong Ren's effectiveness. The positive results of the study were recently published in the Complementary Health Practice Review.

In a treatment, the practitioner directs energy to the areas of the patient where there is blocked energy. Only by removing the blockages in the body will the body begin to heal. Tong Ren treatments can be done in person or remotely over the phone. It can be incorporated with other healing modalities, or it can be the sole focus of treatment. Tong Ren Therapy was first developed as an effective treatment for cancer patients though practitioners have seen amazing results with a variety of illnesses and diseases including Multiple Sclerosis, Parkinson's, diabetes, arthritis, chronic fatigue syndrome, musculoskeletal pain, thyroid disease, conditions chronic and minor.

Ren is based on the idea that most health problems are based in an unnatural, disrupted, or otherwise obscured flow of natural life energy throughout the body. Tong Ren beliefs assert that these flows include chi, neural electricity, hormones, or blood, thus combining the spiritual beliefs of many energy-related therapies with the science of anatomy and physiology.

Tong Ren Therapy is a form of biofield energy healing, which is designed to restore health and vitality to patients. It blends the Eastern idea of qi (energy in the body) with Western anatomy and physiology.
